VIRGINIA AROUSED.

The Most Intense Excitement Prevailing in All Parts of the State.

A Larger Vote Likely to Be Polled Today Than Ever Before.

The Richmond Blues and One Piece of Artillery Sen to Danville-The Governor's Order and Letter.

Interviews With Mahone and Brady-Both Confident of Success.

Special Dispatch. RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 5.—The question "Who will rule Virginia?" will be settled tomorrow. The excitement throughout the state is intense. The bitterness between the two portions is so great in certain places that the most trifling thing is likely to bring on a row that may culminate in bloodshed. The Danville affair is being discussed by everybody. The democrats claim that it will do the party good and make the white vote more solid. On the other hand, the readjuster leaders assert that it will bring over to their ranks all fair and liberal minded men, who are willing to give the his rights under the constitution and the law. The bourbons have raised the cry of race war and social equality, and are flooding the southwest, the great white voting section, with documents to drawing the color line. The readjuster leaders, on the stump and everywhere else, proclaim that they are against drawing the color line. This fact is imbedded in the foundation of the platform of their party. Gov. Cameron, against whom so much has been said, because he appointed colored trustees to certain places, is now being abused and charged with being at the bottom of all the trouble between the whites and blacks in Danville. Some prejudiced men go so far as to say that Cameron would like to see a war of races, In his speech at the Richmond theater the governor said substantially: "They say that if our party wins a war of races will be the result. I do not fear such a thing, and if such should come, you will find me in the front rank with those through whose veins courses the blood of the Anglo-Saxon." This positive assertion made a deep impression upon all who heard it, and was followed by another: "I am the governor of Virginia and not the governor of a faction. When the heat and passion of to-morrow's election will have passed away, and the returns declare the success of the readjuster cause, this race issue will have died out, and the wheels of gov-ernment will run as smoothly as ever."

ernment will run as smoothly as ever."

The excitement now is greater than Virginia has ever seen. In the street cars, on the streets, at homes, and on the railway trains nothing is talked about but the election. The people are worked up to such a pitch that some of them frequently forsake patriotism for pugilism, and go at it in earnest.

resolutions refusing patronage or employment to readjusters. Some of them concocted the circular about 'coalition rule in Danvile.' It was so false that they only circulated it in the valley and in southwest Virginia, and Danville people have never seen it. I answered that circular last Friday sinks in the presence of over have flevor seen it. I answered that circular last Friday night in the presence of over one thousand people, many of them funders, and some signers of the circular. I denounced it as a false and cowardly circular and proved its falsity. I remained in Danville until midday Saturday without hearing one word from those who pretend to be aggrieved. I then left Dan-ville in an open buggy, starting from the center of the town, in the presence of 200 people. I went to Pigg's mill, twelve miles distant, where I had an appointment to speak, and then addressed a large audience. On my return to Danville, about 8 p. m., I learned of the cowardly murders of that evening, and also learned that I was to be assassinated on sight.

"The individuals aggrieved, not having the pluck to call me to account, had put it into the hands of a drunken mob. I remained in Danville in the same quarters I always occupy, and in the center of the town, within twenty yards of the seene of the murders of Saturday, until next evening, when I came to Richmond to see if some measures could not be adopted to protect our voters in Dau-ville on election day. The mob still rules Danville, and parades the streets with shotguns and rifles. It has driven many colored men from Danville and intimidated many more. The mob is now continued in order to deter our voters from coming to the polls, and yet funders call this a free state. The police are powerless and are practically discontinued. Not one arrest has been made in Danville, and if one was attempted it would be useless, as the ringleaders in the riot are the men who patrol the town, and have defied law and order."

Col. Sims will leave to-night for his home in Chatham, and will pass through Danville. An extra edition of the Whig was published this morning and is selling rapidly. The newsboys are besieged, and cannot meet the newsboys are besteged, and cannot meet the demands made upon them. The Whig heads its article in flaming letters: "A Riot All One Way," "An Uninteresting Crowd of Negroes Decimated," "A Concerted St. Bartholomew's Eve," "A Cruel and Inhuman Massacre of Innocent and Flying Negroes," "No Whites Hurt Except by Accident. Shame!" A special received from Danyille to-day, concludes as followed. Except by Accident. Shame!" A special re-ceived from Danville to-day, concludes as fol-lows: "The democrats attribute the riot to Col. Sims's speech of Friday night, while the readjusters read it in the logical result of the teaching of the Danville Times, and the re-solutions and speeches of the democratic clubs for weeks past. All good men, white and colored, deplore the violence as an un-provoked outrage upon a defenseless peoule." Provoked outrage upon a defenseless people."

The Waig, the leading organ of the readjuster party, in an extra edition, which is now going through the press, says editorially:

Further information from Danville positively shows that the alleged riot was nothing but a preconcerted and devilish attack upon unarmed and innocent negroes gathered at the market to purchase their Sunday supplies. A deliberate scheme seems to have been but developed by the occurrences of Saturday afternoon. A callision was sought, the quarrel was pressed, and the firing, as an early the start of the started and though afternoon. A callision was sought, the quarrel was pressed, and the firing, as an early the started and firing crowd of colored people. It was shameful, cruel, barbarous.

But what was no be expected of the boys and youths aft Danville when their elders deliberately led them on and incited them by the same inflammatory means employed in the "Danville Circular" and its contemporaneous "Danville Circular" and its contemporaneous "Danville Circular and its contemporaneous "Danville Circular and its contemporaneous "Danville Circular and the continue of a sevention of a most abominate plot.

What do the people of Viginia think of this development of bourhou funderism and its policy of mile or right. What can good people snywhere think of this mode of demanding "your ballots or your lives."

Vote Down the Devilem Crew!

Hon. John S. Wise speaks to-night in Manchester. It will be the last speech of the campaign, and a big crowd will hear him.

The vote in Richmond will be a large one. While no serious trouble is apprehended at the polls, if a row should occur it would not surprise anybody. It will be decided before morning whether one or two lines are to be adopted in voting; that is to say, whether a line of whites and a line of colored men are to be formed and vote first one and then another, or adopt the plan first come first served. The democrats say that unless the two line plan is agreed upon there will be a row. The readjusters, on the other band, think that the two line system will prevent a full vote being polled; that in precincts where the readjusters are in the majority the election officers, who are democrats, will not vote the men fast enough, but fool away time. One company of the First Virginia regiment has been ordered to spend to-night at the armory. This order was not made by the governor, and must have been given by Mayor Carrington.

MILITIA ORDERED TO DANVILLE.

MILITIA ORDERED TO DANVILLE.

Special Dispatch.
Gov. Cameron to-night sent the Richmond Light Infantry Blues and a section of howitzers to Danville. The military left to-night at 11 o'clock, and will arrive in Danville early in the morning. The Blues number thirty-five men. Before leaving the armory Capt. Pizzinni made a speech to his company, advising them to discard politics while in the discharge of their duty. The city is greatly excited. The following is the governor's order:
RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 5, 1883.—James Wood, Sheriff, Danville, Va.—On representations officially made by yourseif, as sergeant, and J. H. Johnston, as mayor, of the city of Danville, I have ordered one company of infantry and a section of artillery to report to you to morrow morning for the preservation of peace and the execution of law in your community. You are authorized to use them only for these purposes. Maj. Carter will command all the military, including those now on duty, and has full instructions from me. The troops will do all that the civil authorities have a right to require, and will act for no party and no cass of the community. I have instructed Maj. Carter to disperse and disarm all persons in the corporate limits of Danville, except those who have been armed and commissioned by the sheriff as a posse comitatus, or who belong to the regularly commissioned police force of Danville, or are members of the military force under command of Maj. Carter. You should see, and Maj. Carter is so instructed, that every citizen shall have peacefully his life and liberty, and those who threaten or attack the rights or safety of others should be dealt with according to law. This action of mine is entirely official. A public officer should be no respector of persons. My object is only to preserve the peace, without regard to parties, and to see, as is my sworn duty, that every citizen of Virginia shall safely exercise the rights which are guaranteed by the constitution and the law, WILLIAM E. CAMKEON. cited. The following is the governor's order:

Commonwealth of Virginis, office of the governor and commander in ohief, Richmond, Va., Nov. 5, 1883. Special order No. 14.

I. The Richmond Light Infantry Blues, Capt. Pizzinni, and one section of the Richmond Howitzers, with one piece of artillery, will report to Maj. H. C. Carter, first battation Vignia artillery, at the depot of the Richmond and Danville railway to night at 11 o'clock promptly, armed and equipped for service.

II. Maj. Carter will conduct this detachment to Danville, Va., by rail, and on service that there will take command of the state military on day in that city, and will report to the city sergeant or Sieriff James Wood to aid the civil authorities in the execution of law against all rictous or disorderly persons.

pitch that some of them frequently forsake patriotism for pugilism, and go at it in carnest.

Arrangements have been perfected here by which sufficient returns may be received by midnight to-morrow to give a good idea as to how the state will go.

Col. Wm. E. Simms, of Pittsylvania, arrived in the city to-day, and spent the morning with the governor.

"I see that you have been denounced as making an incendiary speech in Danville on Friday night," said your correspondent.

"I did no such thing," said he. "The funder leaders of Danville have for weeks said, in public speeches, that bullets should win if the ballot did not. They passed resolutions refusing patronage or cuployment to readjusters, Some of them concocted the circular about 'coalition rule in Danvile.' It was so false.

Aralk WITH SENATOR MAHONE.

A TALK WITH SENATOR MAHONE.

Petersbug, VA., Nov. 5.-Your correspondent called upon Senator Mahone to-day, in order to obtain some expression of his views concerning the probable effect of the recent riot in Danville on the result of the election. The great readjuster was found surrounded by a number of his trusted lieutenants, head over ears immersed in business connected with the closing movements of the campaign.

"What effect, if any, will this Danville affair have upon the election?"
"That is difficult to say," replied Senator Mahone. "It will probably affect some votes on both sides, though it is impossible to esti-mate with any degree of accuracy the extent to which it may influence the voters of the two parties."

"What is the majority which the readjuster party will probably get to-morrow."
When this question was fired at him the senator smiled, and, tapping his interrogator gently on the shoulder, said :

"That is something several persons have been trying to pick out of me lately, but I decline to be picked." I then called Senator Mahone's attention to a special from Washington, published in the Baltimore Herald of to-day, which is as

It is stated here to-night that Senator Mahone to-day telegraphed Gov. Cameron to call out the state millifa throughout Virginia on election day. The governor, it is said, replied that as the millita was composed almost entirely of democrats they would not obey the orders if issued. Upon this information being received Mr. Gorham and Mr. Hatton called on the President and requested that United States troops be stationed at the points on election day where trouble is feared. What action the President will take in the matter is not known. This story, though generally credited, cannot be confirmed, owing to the disinclination of the parties to talk.

"Is there, any truth in that It is stated here to-night that Senator Mah

"Is there any truth in that paragraph

The answer come as brief as it was emphatic—"There is not a word of truth in the statement. It is another bourbon lie."

COL. BRADY CONFIDENT.

PETERSBURG, VA., Nov. 5.-I also visited Col. J. D. Brady, chairman of the republican state central committee. Col. Brady has been a member, as also secretary and chairman of this committee, ever since the close of the war, and his opinion is entitled to considera-ble attention. In reply to the question what he thought of the situation of affairs, and the result in the state to-morrow, Col. Brady said:

From the best information I have, from all sections of the state, the coalition read-juster party it stronger to-day than it has been for any time since its organization in the state, and if the white readjusters romain firm, my judgment is that we shall carry the state by at least 15,000 majority; carry the house of delegates by 20, and the senate by 4. The colored people are more thoroughly united and in better spirits than at any time since the readjuster party was formed."

"This campaign," continued Col. Brady,
"has been unparalleled for misrepresentation and abuse of readjusters who left the democratic party. During the worst days of carpetbagism and scallawagism I have never witnessed such bitterness and malig-nity on the part of the democratic leaders and their newspapers. Now, take this unfortunate affair in Danville. My observation is that there is no special ex-citement among the white people over the killing of colored men in Danville, although it is evident from the reports in democratic organs they are endeavoring to make all the political capital out of this sad occurrence by appealing

York Down the Deviline Crew!

Hon. John S. Wise speaks to-night in Manchester. It will be the last speech of the campaign, and a big crowd will hear him.

The vote in Richmond will be a large one. While no serious trouble is apprehended at the polls, if a row should occur it would not surprise anybody. It will be decided before to mixed speakers everywhere have publicly proclaimed in emphatic terms their opposition to mixed schools and social intercourse, and to mixed schools and social intercourse, and I defy any democrat anywhere to name any colored readjuster who has advocated any of the false dectrine charged to our party."

"How about colored democrats, colonel?"

"I do not know of a prominent colored man of character and respectability in the state

THE RESPONSE WE SEE THE PERSON OF THE PERSON

"I do not know of a prominent colored man of character and respectability in the state who has supported and is now supporting the funders unless he is paid for it, and the only appeals I know of on the part of the negroes for social equality, mixed schools, &c., have come from those known to be in the employ of, and paid by, bourbon democrats, with the object in view of driving off weak-kneed white men from our party. I think we shall carry Petersburg by 1,000 majority. The only way in which we can be beaten to-morrow is by the corrupt use of money."

By Associated Press.
Lyncheurg, Va., Nov. 5,-An immens mass meeting held here to night passed resolutions offered by Gen. Jubal A. Early, expressing sympathy with the people of Dan-ville, declaring for a "free ballot and a fair count" in to-morrow's election, and threatening summary vengeance on any man or set of men who undertake to perpetrate fraud.

FREDERICKSBURG.

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., Nov. 5.—This morning while Capt. M. B. Rowe, with Jos. W. Colbert, was passing the corner of Charles and Commerce streets, where several colored men were talking, Peyton Streets, colored, said: "Those Danville telegrams as d—d funder lies." Without stopping, Rowe said to Colbert: "What does that negro know about forged telegrams?" In a moment Streets came around the corner and said: "I said they were d—d funder lies." More words fellowed, and finally blows were exchanged. The seuffle caused a good deal of excitement for a few moments, and a large crowd assembled but the excitement soon subsided. Streets was arrested and locked up. No other negro used any threatening language. There has been no riot or disturbance of the peace except this. Perfect quiet was restored in a short time, and no further trouble is apprehended. The colored people here as a class are of exemplary demeanor. The leaders of both parties and the city officers will make every effort to preserve order to-morrow. W. Colbert, was passing the corner of Charles

DIRECT FROM DANVILLE.

A government official wrote the treasury department from Danville, Va., yesterday, that he was within a few rods of the scene of Saturday's riot, and says that the inception of the difficulty was a fist fight be-tween a negro and a white man, and as soon as the news of this disturbance was resoon as the news of this disturbance was re-ceived by the democratic meeting then in session, they rushed out and began an indis-criminate firing upon the blacks, who had congregated at the point where the two men were fighting. The negroes fled, some of them with pistols in their hands, but appeared to be too fright-ened to make any effective use of their weapons. Immediately afterward the streets were througed by white men armed with were througed by white men armed with shotguns, rifles, and revolvers, and there was much desultory firing in the directions taken much desultory firing in the directions taken by the fugitives. A semi-military patrol of the streets was established, and strangers were halted and cross-examined by bodies of armed men. Threats were freely made of sacking the office of the collector of internal revenue, Mr. Ralston, and, although then absent from the city, he was charged with inciting the negroes to riot and bloodshed. It was believed that in the event of Mr. Ralston's return his life would be in danger, as threats of assassination were freely indulged in. The writer describes the condition of feeling among the white men as very excited, and says that it is evident that further hostilities were desired by them in order that they might have an excuse to terrorize the colored people to such an extent as

HERE AND THERE IN LONDON. Commencement of the Ragan Course of Illuminated Lectures.

THE RESERVE OF THE PERSON AS A SECOND PROPERTY OF T

The opening lecture of Ragan's illuminated tours was delivered last evening at the Congregational church before a small but critical audience. The subject, as set down in the programme, was "Here and There in London," and was handled by Mr. Ragan in a masterly manner and illustrated with stereopticonic views of the various points of inter-opticonic views of the various points of interest alluded to.

The route chosen started from Charing Cross, at the base of the equestrian statue of Charles I, down Oxford street, Holborne, and Cheapside to Tower hill, with pauses at St. Paul's, Temple Bar and its musty inns, the Royal Exchange, the Mansion House, and other places in the ancient city made famous by pen of the historian and novelists, through the gateways of the tower—that fortress, palace, and prison—over whose battlements crept ivy centuries old, when the present British empire was born. The speaker held his audience spell bound as he led them under the shadow of the great dome, down the sharp turn that leads to the huge structure that to-day forms the domicile of the "old lady of Threadneedle street," halted with them before the book stalls of Paternoster row, or peered into the of Paternoster row, or peered into the musty shops of the law stationers in Cook's court. The tower, with its frowning walls and somber associations, was presented with all the fidelity of the camera, and from the "beef eaters" to the chapel, beneath whose tiled floor molders what was once neath whose tiled floor molders what was once the headless corpse of full many a prince and peer, the lecture was replete with historic fact and modern anecdote. From this point the journey was along the Thames and its famous embankment, past Somerset house and the houses of parliament, where the woolsack and the throne sway the destinies of that nation, whose drum beat echoes girdle the globe to Westminster Abbey, where a half hour was spent before the monwhere a half hour was spent before the mon-uments of kings and queens, and those intel-lectual monarchs from Chaucer to Dickens, whose dust honors the ground wherin it re-

With rare judgment Mr. Ragan maintained with rare judgment Mr. Ragan maintained the interest throughout the lecture, and dis-missed his audience thoroughly satisfied with his effort. The remaining lectures will be delivered Nov. 9, 23, 26, and 27.

THE SITUATION IN BALTIMORE.

Democrats Spending Money Lavishly-The New Mayor and Council-Campaign

Special Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5 .- At to-night's session of the city council the first branch was found to be blocked by a tie vote of ten to ten, and an adjournment was ordered until Monday next. Strong efforts have been made by the democratic members to organize the branch, democratic members to organize the branch, but without success.

Mayor-elect Latrobe entered upon his duties, but deferred sending in his message until the January session. The election to-morrow absorbs public attention to-night, and a very heavy vote will be polled. Re-publicans, while not willing to concede Holton's defeat, are not over confident as to Holton's defeat, are not over confident as to the state ticket, but are satisfied that they will be able to control the senate if not the lower house, and will at least be enabled to elect an independent senator if they cannot elect a straightout republican. In the city the republicans are confident of electing four of the important offices on the fusion ticket—sheriff, state's attorney, clerk of the superior court, and one judge of the orphan's court. Democratic leaders are distributing money lavishly tonight, and are leaving nothing undone in their desperate efforts to win to-morrow.

PORT TOBACCO, MD., Nov. 5 .- The repubcan campaign in this county was brought to tic mass meeting at Port Tobacco.

Enthusiastic speeches were made by re-publicans, and the greatest confidence pre-vails. At least this part of Maryland will give a handsome republican majority.

Annapolis Notes.

Special Dispatch. Annapolis, Nov. 5 .- Shortly after dinner Saturday, while engaged in a game of foot ball two cadets collided with such force as to knock Cadet Bonham, fourth class, insensible. He was picked up as though dead from the field and carried to the hospital by his classmates, where medical assistance was given him. It was nearly an hour before the young cadet regained consciousness. While the naval academy cadets were at practice Saturday on the steamer Wyoming a fire was discovered under the seamanship building in the academy. The alarm was immediately sounded, which was soon taken up by the alarm bell on the frigate Santee. The cadets forthwith left the Wyoming, and in company with the detailed sailors and marines repaired to their respective stations. The steam engine was brought out, and soon the fire was extinguished.

Naval Cadet Louis E. Warfield, second class, of Baltimore, met with a painful acci-dent Saturday afternoon, while riding in company with another cadetat North Severn, opposite the academy, his horse having fallen, causing young Warfield to be thrown over the horse's head, breaking his collar bone. He was unable to reach the naval academy until a late hour Saturday night, when Drs. Bortolette and McClug ren-dered necessary and The hour dered necessary aid. The bone was reset af ter a painful operation.

The republicans closed their campaign at Annapolis to-night with an all night meeting. They have made a vigorous contest.

Two prisoners were taken to the Maryland penitentiary Saturday from Annapolis.

A South Carolina Killing.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 5 .- Toby Grant, a negro desperado, was killed by Abram W. Clement, a white man, at Rantowles, on the Charleston and Savannah railway, on Sunday afternoon Grant went into the store where Clement was a clerk, while under the influence of liquor, and cursed him. When ordered out of the store he threatened to kill Clement, and forced his way behind the counter, and caught Clement by the throat. Clement threw off his assailant, seized a gun which was near at hand, and while the negro was rushing on him the second time, shot him dead. An immense crowd of negroes gathered about the store, and threatened to Clement, but three white men locked the the mob remaining outside. To-day an in-quest was held, and Clement was safely conveyed to the Colleton county jail.

MARYLAND POLITICS.

The Opinions of Our Special Correspondent on the Result

A Careful and Exhaustive Review of the Whole Field.

Large Republican Gains in the Legislature Confidently Predicted.

What is Thought of Holton's Chances of Election.

Special Letter. BALTIMORE, Nov. 5 .- To-morrow will deeide the result of the most determined campaign for the overthrow of the democracy of Maryland that the republicans have ever waged. That they will succeed I do not believe, simply because I do not think when the pinch comes the independent democrats will have the courage of their convictions, and vote for Holton in numbers sufficient to overcome the majority this city will give McLane. The republicans are handicapped by ineffective methods of organization and lack of outside aid to correspond with that received by the democrats. Still I think, despite these disadvantages, they will probably carry the state outside of Baltimore city and county, and to succeed in doing that even will be a perform-ance pregnant with cheerful promise for the future. In round numbers on a full vote the future. In round numbers on a full vote the democrats had 20,000 majority in 1876, and 15,000 in 1880. In the congressional campaign of 1882 the majority was but little over 6,000, but it was by no means a full vote, and any conclusions drawn therefrom would be fallacious. However, all the evidences point to the fact that as between the two parties the ratio of increase has for years past been steadily in favor of the republicans, and I think this election will prove that the tenure of the democratic control in that the tenure of the democratic control in Maryland is drawing to a close.

For the republicans to permanently succeed in this state one of the preliminary essentials will be the doing away with their present combrous and inefficient party organization. Their method, as it stands, now ganization. Their method, as it stands, how seems specially designed to prevent the rank and file of the party from entering into sym-pathetic, intelligent working relations with its leaders. If the whole re-publican vote of Maryland is polled there are unquestionably enough discontented are unquestionably enough discontented democrats whose votes might be added thereto—by skillful management—to give them the majority; but the present system of organization is not sufficient to reach those discontented elements, and bring them into alliance, as an entire ty, with the resublicans. alliance, as an entirety, with the republicans. The state central committee has its representatives in every county, but between it and the county central committees there is no direct communication, the members of the state central committee for the county being the intermediary relied upon, to the ignoring of the county chairman. This must, of necessity, often lead to clashing of authority—or imagined authority—between the county chairman and the state central committee man, and hence to lack of harmonicus concerted action so essential to good polifical work. The perfect unity of organization, common to both parties in the great western October states, Ohio and Indiana, where from state chairman, state committee, congressite of the country of t alliance, as an entirety, with the republicans. state chairman, state committee, congresional chairman, congressional committee, county chairman, county committee, town-ship chairman, and township committee, the relations of each part of the machinery to the others, the degree of authority one grade has over the other, and the perfect system of intercommunication whereby the state chairman has at hand the names of each member of each branch of the organization, and can and does, when necessary, communi-cate directly with all down to the lowest road of school district member of the town-ship committees, is simply unknown or unthought of here. The application of such an organization here would quickly place Maryland in the list of debatable states.

As to outside help, while the democrats, having control of all the large patronage of the state, have an initial advantage of great value, they have also been backed up by ma-terial aid from abroad, and assisted in their canvass by some of the most eminent speakers in the party ranks from other states. Such men as Bayard, Randall, and Cox, not to mention lesser lights, have been engaged in appealing to the disaffected elements of their party to refrain from endangering the prospect of democratic success in the presidential campaign of next year by the poyal effect of perpaign of next year by the moral effect of perpaign of next year by the inorial effect of per-mitting the republicans to offset Ohio through carrying Maryland now, but the republicans have had no corresponding help. On their part it has been an earnest, hopeful canvass, waged with home speakers and resources, and devoted almost exclusively to the consideration of domestic interests and reforms. Their line of public argument and appeal to the people has been wisely designed to meet local temperaments and currents of feeling, and whether they win or not they certainly have thoroughly scared the democ

The republicans have, with the means at The republicans have, with the means at their disposal, carried on a bold campaign. County after county has been actively canvassed that has always heretofore been practically allowed to go by default. The counties on the eastern shore peninsula have been given such a political shaking up as has never before been known within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Republican meetings have been held in localities where they were never thought of in former campaigns, and been well attended, too. Such work cannot fail of good results in the way of a fuller vote than usual, but it has the corresponding effect of awakening the alarmed democrats to the necessity of extraordinary offorts. It is pretty sure, however, that they are destined to lose heavily in their strongest counties, such as Worcester and Wicomico, or else the republicans there badly misinterpret the in-

Totals...... 98,706 78,515 80,725 71,525 The totals in 1876 were, democratic, 91,780; republican, 71,981. Hamilton, for governor, in 1879, had 22,157 majority over Gary, the present chairman of the republican state contral committee. The only fair basis of comparison of gains and losses in the presidential election. election is with that of 1880, for the reason that the vote in the congressional election of 1882 was light, and the gubernatorial election of 1879 was largely influenced by causes that induced many republicans to vote for Hamil-
